In the ever changing world of today, with wavering global economies, the biggest challenge for the governments of developing nations remain, the provision of essential healthcare, quality education, better employment opportunities, improved social justice and sound development policies. The situation in Pakistan is not much different from other countries, where the strained economy has created an ever increasing wealth divide, a divide that allows only a few privileged to access better opportunities, whereas the majority is left to face the harshness of life with insufficient skills and resources.

Our problems are so acute that our government cannot tackle these alone.

Research is evident of the fact that in today's milieu, it is these synergistic relationships that will help the government to respond to the burgeoning social development issues. No sector alone has either the capacity or the capability to respond to the social challenges in a comprehensive manner. Recognizing the benefits of synergies, countries all over the world opt for these multi-stakeholder dependencies to make tangible and significant contributions to the society. 4CCI is another program that will adopt these synergistic approach to tackle the social problems of the country.

For my self, 4CCI is a self effacing endeavor which will strive to improve the lives of the marginalized people specially women and children. Our canvass of dynamic reforms is broad and includes; school up gradation programs, Program-Vocational Training for Women Empowerment, Disaster Management, Advocating Gender Equality, Youth Mobilization Programs, Computer Literacy - Providing Computer Access & promoting E- learning.

GLOBAL SCHOOL PARTNERSHIP

The Global School Partnership (GSP) Program under British Council is aimed to connect schools all across the world to UK schools, in order to extend the understanding of the disparity between education and global education. The program starts with a partnership developed among schools and then instigation of an array of projects developed by the students of both school. These projects cover all aspects of life, from basic education practices, to global issues in our societies. Roots School System has been an active participant of this program with a healthy link established to our partner school in Cambridge UK, by the name St. Ivo School. Alongside this 10 Roots Schools are twinned with 10 UK schools in Cambridgeshire forming a cluster partnership. Under this program it is an honor that our International program Manager Humaira Hameed visited UK School and spent five working days there to communicate and interact with students and teachers. The main objective behind the visit is to maintain a sustainable and strong long term partnership between the two schools. It gives the incentive and motivation to make the partnership thrive , continue to develop and to embed collaborative activities into curriculum.

4CCI BRIDGING DISTANCES & HARNESSING DIVERSITY:

He also visited and met with representatives of several UK universities including the London School of Economics, University of London, Williams Law CE School, University of Sussex, Thomas Deacon Academy, and St Ivo School. With the visits he was able to observe and identify areas of cooperation between the respective educational institutions. He was invited by the Mayor, Councilor Paula Thacker MBE, of the city of Peterborough, a lively city consisting of a large population of immigrants from commonwealth countries like India and Pakistan, and a prime example of how people from different cultures can co-exist and prosper. He commented on his visit "In recent years there has been an increased demand in developing countries for improved educational access, and students in Pakistan are seeking better opportunities to receive world class education in world class institutions. As societies open up to embrace globalization, a gaping distance is observed between the educational institutions of developed and the developing countries".
